

Scrap Serco!

Give the cash to the NHS and local public health teams

Serco, a private company run by the brother of a former Conservative MP, has been awarded contracts worth billions of pounds to run the official test and trace system. Serco's contact tracing contract ends on 17th May, and, given the two-week notice period, the Government will decide by 3rd May whether to renew it.

This privatised test and trace system has failed, and Serco's contract must not be renewed. Instead, the money must be given to local public health teams and the NHS. They would do a much better job.

The vaccination programme needs to be backed up by an effective test and trace system, run by properly appointed, qualified public servants, who are accountable to the public and whose main aim is to protect us, not to make a profit.

The Government has allocated an eye-watering £37 billion of our money to testing and tracing over two years. From now on, this must go to the public sector and the NHS, not to private companies.

Don't let them get away with this!

Write to your MP and your local council. Templates available here:
zerocovid.uk/scrap-serco-27-april

Tweet your support: #ScrapSerco

www.zerocovid.uk

Scrap Serco!

Give the cash to the NHS and local public health teams

Serco, a private company run by the brother of a former Conservative MP, has been awarded contracts worth billions of pounds to run the official test and trace system. Serco's contact tracing contract ends on 17th May, and, given the two-week notice period, the Government will decide by 3rd May whether to renew it.

This privatised test and trace system has failed, and Serco's contract must not be renewed. Instead, the money must be given to local public health teams and the NHS. They would do a much better job.

The vaccination programme needs to be backed up by an effective test and trace system, run by properly appointed, qualified public servants, who are accountable to the public and whose main aim is to protect us, not to make a profit.

The Government has allocated an eye-watering £37 billion of our money to testing and tracing over two years. From now on, this must go to the public sector and the NHS, not to private companies.

Don't let them get away with this!

Write to your MP and your local council. Templates available here:
zerocovid.uk/scrap-serco-27-april

Tweet your support: #ScrapSerco

www.zerocovid.uk

